TELLS WHY CAMP GIRLS SALUTE THOSE WHO PASS

Mrs. Hugh L. Scott Says the Rule Makes the Student More Alert.

Why do the girls salute at the woman's preparedness camp? This phase of the military discipline, which has caused some merriment and some ridiby outsiders, was explained by Mrs. Hugh L. Scott, honorary commandant of the National Service chool and wife of the chief of staff of the army. She said:

"The salute originated as a means f exacting observation and immediate action as a result of that observation; and thus it is that a student walking through the camp first notices that an Individual is approaching, and in doing this must notice the insignia of rank or its absence. She then salutes or does not, as the case may be.

"Thus the girl is made more alert id has offered the official courtesy ie by order to a certain degree of

"And thus it is as we trace back to its source all of the official action that seems to the layman merely ceremonious and often foolish. We find that it has become merely what years of experience has taught us is a wise convention."

Superfluous Words.

In a great hurry he took the following telegram to a telegraph office: "Mrs. Brown, Liverpool street-I announce with grief the death of Uncle James Come quickly to read will; I believe we are his heirs.-John Black." The clerk, having counted the words, said:
"There are two too many, sir." "All states last year is estimated by the right; cut out 'with grief,'" was the answer.

yesterday to Uncle Joe Cannon, on his eightieth birthday, will be forgotten. Probably no one who was there, either in the hall of the House or in the galleries, will forget the scene, and to any one alive to the impressiveness of the speeches made, it was an occasion in which thousands of historic episodes were recalled by the nation's lawmakers.

The speech of Speaker Clark was a classic on the speakership; the speech of Representative Kitchin, leader of the democratic side, recalled he fact, and an odd fact to many, that he North Carolin- man had once been a freshman congressman. Champ Clark brought to mind that long before Representative Davis of Texas was called "Cyclone." Uncle Joe had termed him, Representative Clark, "the Missouri Cyclone." Representative Sherwood of join in the birthday tribute. Representative Mann of Illinois wanted to see a full attendance, and masmuch as the members were tardy and the House was very nearly empty he made a point of no quorum. Following an old-time custom, the doorkeeper locked all the doors but those entering the House chamber from the Speaker's lobby. Senator Tillman got entangled in this procedure, and, after escaping from the House, went to his office and contributed the following bit of written description to the occasion: contributed the following bit of writ-ten description to the occasion:

"Senator Tillman was told by a mem-ber of the House that at 11 o'clock the House would suspend everything and eulogize Uncle Joe Cannon on his eightieth birthday. I like Cannon very much and respect him, and I went over there about five minutes after 11 I hardly got seated good before some one brought about a call of the House under some hokus pokus I did not un-derstand. Knowing it would take forty minutes to call the roll I got up 89c Umbrellas, forty minutes to call the roll I got up to leave, and lo and behold I found myself locked in. So I determined to make the best of it and sat down again. Then a friendly member told me if I went forward instead of back-ward I could get out by going through the Speaker's lobby. He kindly piloted me around to the front door and I wended my way back to my commit-tee room.

Surprise of the Day.

locks senators in when it has a roll locking doors is about as effective as ours. The senators read the proceedings of the executive sessions in the newspapers, and they are usually quite accurate, and they are usually quite accurate, and the House, locking the doors to keep absentees from coming in, is a humbug. "Martha" is to be produced. These ad-

too. The only satisfying recollection connected with the visit is Uncle Joe with a red rose in his buttonhole, looking as young and dapper as if he were sixteen instead of eighty."

Here the senator had an afterthought, and utilizing his experience in preparing copy for the Congressional Record, he appended this:

"(Insert after 'room,' end of first paragraph):

"I would rather hear Uncle Joe's speech than read it, but I haven't time to sit and hear roll calls."
